

The aim and objectives of the inter-generational two-day outdoor camp

The inter-generational two-day outdoor camp is an awareness event on environmental issues and climate change. The camp will involve families and children with the objective of communicating and discussing the European policies on climate change and the environment. Moreover, it is further aimed that the Common Agricultural Policy will be tackled, with particular reference to those actions aimed at safeguarding and protecting the environment. This camp will take place over a weekend with the objective being to provide a mix of interactive information sessions, debates as well as other interactive activities. Issues such as energy efficiency and waste management will be dealt with both from a theoretical and a practical point of view, so as to encourage participants to become more aware of the environmental cost of their actions.

An agreement between the Malta-EU Steering and Action Committee (MEUSAC) and the European Commission

In a bid to bring Europe closer to the citizens and to address the communication gap between EU citizens and the European Institutions, in March 2009 an agreement was signed between the Malta-EU Steering and Action Committee (MEUSAC) and the European Commission. The agreement aims to increase communication actions locally by creating fora for public dialogue on EU matters. The inter-generational two-day outdoor camp is one of the events forming part of this agreement. For further information about other events see www.meusac.gov.mt
